

Writing Assignment 2: ABET

Prompt: Write a 1-page, single-spaced paper assessing your abilities in relation to the 7 Student Outcomes. At a minimum address which one you are very confident in and which one you are weakest in.

Response: Reflecting on the seven Student Outcomes, Capstone has helped me understand how the course shaped my communication and teamwork skills. The emphasis on clarity, audience awareness, and industry-style writing pushed me to rethink how I present technical information and how I collaborate with others.

The outcome I feel strongest in is communicating effectively with a range of audiences. The weekly writing assignments trained me to express ideas concisely, and the industry-style expectations taught me to prioritize readability and purpose. A defining moment came when the professor critiqued my slides and pointed out that my explanations were too technical for a general audience. That feedback made me realize that effective communication depends on simplicity and accessibility, not on showing every detail. Since then, I have become more intentional about using clear language and structuring information so that non-technical audiences can follow it easily.

I am also confident in functioning effectively on team. The collaborative expectations helped me practice giving and receiving feedback constructively. These experiences strengthened my ability to coordinate with others, adapt to different working styles, and contribute meaningfully to shared tasks.

The outcome I am still weakest in is speaking up in group discussions. While I am comfortable writing and producing structured work, I sometimes hesitate to voice my thoughts during live conversations, especially when the topic is open-ended. This made me more aware of this gap because active participation was an important part of the course. I am working on becoming more confident by preparing brief points beforehand and reminding myself that early contributions help shape the direction of the discussion.

Overall, DAEN 460 strengthened my communication skills, improved my teamwork abilities, and highlighted the importance of adapting my message to different audiences. At the same time, it showed me that developing confidence in verbal discussions is an area I need to continue improving as I prepare for future academic and professional environments.
